NEWS OF VARIOUS KINDS

The 43rd annual reunion of the Lake county soldiers and sailors will be held in Waukegan on August 17 and 18, it was decided last Thursday afternoon at a meeting of members and delegates in G. A. R. hall, Waukegan.

Total tax receipts by the government for the fiscal year ending June 30, were $24,593,933,248, of which $3,212,713,489 was derived from income and profit taxes, the bureau of internal revenue announced last week. Illinois, with a total of $387,763,982 of which $260,300,382 was collected from incomes and profits, ranked third.

The Lake County fair opens on Labor day, Monday, Sept. 5, and as was the case last year, it will be one of the big days, with special inducements offered labor organizations to attend. The speed program this year comprises total purses of $7,700, with three harness classes and a running race each of the five days.

The last vestiges of the saloon atmosphere maintained by screens, bars, stalls and booths will pass out of Wisconsin with the coming of the new prohibition enforcement July 1, or shortly after, W. Stanley Smith, a prohibition commissioner, announced recently in explaining the expected new law.

Two Troy farmers, Ira Cheney and W. L. Fry shot three wolves near the Troy marsh the past week. From all reports there evidently are quite a number of small wolves or coyotes in that vicinity.

The Wisconsin Transportation Company has a new steel hull modern yacht, named "Majestic," which has been put in public service on Lake Geneva. The new addition to the fleet is a beautiful one and is modern in every way.

Tom E. Burnette, who opened a barber shop at Richmond some weeks ago, sold out to his competitor, Geo. H. Rowe, last week and has accepted a position in Mr. Rowe's show, Mr. H. L. Chevillon retiring from the business. Mr. Burnette is a son of N. S. Burnette of Antioch.

Postmaster Zimmerman of Burlington, has received from the government a consignment of firearms to be used for the arming of postoffice employees for the better protection of postoffice property and funds in case of attempted robbery.

Ten cent ice cream sodas and sundae plus 1 cent war tax, appeared at four large drug stores in Chicago last week, according to newspaper reports. "It is only a starter," declared Russell J. J. Poole, Chicago high cost battler. "Now that the justice of the public's demand is seen by a few, the others will fall into line." Fifteen cent sodas are prevalent in a great many towns already, others are following rapidly.

Victory of the tax dodgers in the county court is at best a temporary advantage, as City Attorney Bulkley for Waukegan and State Attorney Smith for Warren, Newport and other country towns, together with attorneys representing Lake Forest and Highland Park will appeal to the higher courts.

Attorneys Dady and Gail, who represent the tax dodgers, reiterate that if the case is carried to the upper courts they will be able to invalidate the county's million dollar bond issue.

Western farmers are reported to have all the harvest help they want at $3 per day, whereas last year they had to pay $8 and $10. In New England there are 800 idle farms compared with 4,000 last year. Apparently the farming industry is slowly coming into its own again, not from special privileges extended by a beneficent government, as many have been advocating, but through the working of the law of supply and demand, coupled with undaunted courage and thrift on the part of the farmers themselves.

How Do They Get That Way?

Jason, the office boy at the News office, to busy general manager:

O. B.: "Gee, I've gotta meet a bill for $11 tonight (Saturday)."

G. M.: "Yah?"

O. B.: "Yah, I've got nine and my mother will give me one more and if I could get another dollar I'd be alright."

G. M.: "Yah?"

O. B.: "I wonder where I can get another buck?" (Exits)

Now Jason is a smart boy, but as errand boy—well, it's a good thing there is only three times a day he has to go to the local postoffice or the News would not receive all their mail.

Jason did not show up for work Monday morning and the general manager does not know whether he is looking for the other dollar or whether he is resting up to get ready for school—for he mentioned something to the general manager about having to bluff his way through the fifth stanza of Mr. Taggart's Institution of Knowledge.

Ye editor met Jason—later on the streets and on inquiring as to his absence, received: "Gee, that guy is dead, but don't know enough to lay down," and was on his way up the street with his head down, probably looking for a "buck."

Our aim is to spread the gospel, which is the power of the Lord. He invites all in the community to attend.

Libertyville Proposes Vehicle Tax Ordinance

At its meeting Monday night the village board considered a measure regulating automobile traffic and imposing a local vehicle tax.

The regulations proposed to govern operation of motor vehicles in Libertyville are those in force in most cities and villages, and can cause little criticism.

The license fee feature is new to Libertyville, however, and the board is anxious to determine public sentiment on the matter. The ordinance, which it is proposed to pass at the next meeting of the board, imposes the following annual vehicle tax:

1 horse wagon or vehicle	$ 2.00
2 horse wagon or vehicle	4.00
3 horse wagon or vehicle	6.00
4 horse wagon or vehicle	8.00
6 horse wagon or vehicle	12.00

Motor bicycles or motorcycles of 35 h. p. or less, $2.50.

Automobiles or motor vehicles of 35 h. p. or less used for the transportation of persons exclusive of trucks, coaches, omnibuses and motor vehicles used for commercial purposes, $5.00.

Automobile or motor vehicles of 35 h. p. or more, used for the transportation of persons exclusive of trucks, coaches, omnibuses and motor vehicles used for commercial purposes, $10.00.

Motor-driven commercial vehicles used for light delivery purposes bearing one ton or less, $5.00.

Automobiles, trucks, coaches, omnibuses and other motor vehicles used for commercial purposes except light motor-driven commercial vehicles used for light delivery purposes, one ton or less, $10.00.

Antioch Is a Town That "Ain't Got No News"

Shortly before filling up the forms last evening, the "make-up" man reported that there was an opening on the first page of about seven inches and needed some good live news to fill it up. So up the street a couple of new-seekers started to the office of Magistrate Gelstrup, who, they were sure could furnish the necessary article. But the judge knows as much about late happenings as a fish knows about overalls.

Over to 'Doc' Warriner the boys started, but were turned away with a reply of "the only news I know of is scandal, and I'd be arrested if I told you." Riley at the third emporium, was next visited, and all he had to say was, he wished Attorney A. V. Smith would take a vacation and go to Cuba or some other distant point.

Geo. B. Johnson, stated he had a lot of news up his sleeve and would be ready for a big explosion in about two weeks.

After visiting a few more or less prominent townfolk, without success, decided there "ain't no news" to fill the vacant seven inches.

Antioch Defeats Kenosha Nine

When the local team opened its season this year on Sunday, May 22, it took on the Rosing Billiard team, of Kenosha and was given a trimming of 22 to 11. This same team returned last Sunday to the local diamond and a different result happened, the locals taking the big end this trip, the score being 11 to 5.

The game was very exciting all the way through with a lot of hitting, sacrifices and good plays. Antioch brought in the first run on an overthrow to home in the first inning, and Kenosha brought in their run in the second on a fly to field. The center fielder slipping in an attempt to get the fly. Then the game tightened up a bit.

The locals did some very good batting all the way through. L. Hook made four sacrifices, advancing the runners every time; B. Fields made a beautiful catch in the field; Fiola made a three base hit and was left at third on account of poor coaching. A double play in the eighth was well handled and showed Kenosha just what material the locals are composed of.

The most excitement came in the seventh, when Pfeiffer, a Kenosha player, was struck out and turned around making a pass at the umpire, which was uncalled for, his idea being that the didn't get a fair showing. Isn't it queer the different dispositions one will see at a ball game, but just the same Antioch held it's own.

Wilton should not be overlooked as he struck out seven men, while Elsen struck out three.

The strong Conway Special team, of Waukegan, will cross bats with the locals next Sunday.

Mrs. Chas. Webb's Uncle Passes Away

His death came after an illness of two years.

Storm Does Much Damage

The rain that accompanied the storm that hit Lake county last Thursday afternoon was worth thousands of dollars to some of the farmers, while others suffered losses caused by the heavy hail in different sections. The lightning played many pranks and many that witnessed where the bolts struck are still figuring out why there wasn't some fires. The clothesline attached to the John Drury home was struck and the bolt took its course into the wall. The steeple of the Lake Villa church was struck and many shingles were removed, but there was no fire.

In Waukegan the lightning hit in many places among which were the court house, the Austrian church, a flag pole, the Johns-Manville factory, struck in three places and the car barns and residences and trees also suffered. The rain flooded the streets up to the curb line and many gardens were washed out.

The Public Service Co. and the Bell Telephone Co. suffered damage all through this section. There was no light or power for several hours.

John Hayden, of Camp Lake, was nearly electrocuted following the severe electrical storm on Thursday when he took hold of a high tension wire that had been broken by a tree falling on it. Dr. Bertha Raymond was called and by using artificial respiration succeeded in bringing him to. Mr. Hayden was then rushed to the Newell hospital at Burlington for treatment. Monday it was found necessary to amputate the thumb and index finger of the left hand. Mr. Hayden was also severely burned on the shoulder and head.

In Zion City lightning hit the Zion Home and the First bank and other residences and trees. Rain damaged crops through this section badly.

The lower part of the county was hit the hardest with rain and hail, as was the lower part of Wisconsin by the second storm that followed early Friday morning.

GRASS LAKE LOTUS BEDS IN BLOOM

Flower Bed is Bigger and More Beautiful Than Ever Before

CONSISTS OF 500 ACRES

A most gorgeous and beautiful sight is now to be seen at Grass lake, one of the chain of lakes surrounding Antioch. The lotus is now in full bloom, opening this year a month ahead of its usual schedule, due probably to the extreme heat of last few weeks.

This year the lotus, biggest and most beautiful in history extend over a vast area of five hundred acres on the western shores of Grass lake.

The Grass lake lotus is probably the only flower of its kind in the world. California, it is rumored, has a small bed of lotus blossoms, but resort owners and caretakers of the Grass lake flower say the western flower is unlike the lotus of Grass lake. Egypt has a lotus, which like the California flower, differs from the Illinois lotus.

The lotus when in full bloom has a wonderful scent which is wafted for miles on the summer breeze and lovers of flowers from all over the country come yearly to see this beautiful sight.

Numerous attempts have been made to transplant the lotus in different localities, but so far none have been successful. Several times experts have tried to replant the flower in Lincoln park, Chicago, which grows practically every flower in existence, from tropical plants and flowers to the most common domestic varieties, but without success.

Many hotels on the lakes are featuring motor boat trips through the lotus beds and each day carry hundreds of spectators.

Lakes Improvement Ass'n Awards to be Given Aug. 14

On Sunday, August 7th, there will be conducted under the auspices of the Association, the second annual Blarney Island Cup Race. The course for this race will probably be from Blarney Island in Grass Lake to McHenry, Ill., and return. This is a very interesting and spectacular event and the handsome trophy is raced for annually.

Marketing Co. Association Threatens to Withdraw Milk

The Marketing Co. association notified Borden & Wislands that they would withdraw the association's milk from their respective factories on Monday unless these companies refused to accept milk from farmers who have not joined the association. Monday morning there were still two farmers to join at Bassett and as Borden stood ready to accept their milk the members of the association drew out and took their milk either to the Marketing creamery at Burlington or at Wilmet. Sixty patrons were at the Wilmet factory Monday morning. The length of the strike is doubtful.

CATS CONFINED TO "RANGE" NOT A PROPER COMPARISON

Chicago Man Reports Success in Novel Plan for Keeping Pets From Straying Far Afield.

Another western idea was adapted to city uses the other day when a south-sider, who once rode the range on the Colorado plateau, staked out his cats to keep them at home. The plan worked fine and now the feline animals get the air every day at the ends of tether ropes.

The cat owner found that every time he opened the cellar door the pets made a break for the open, frequently staying away for days and returning with blackened eyes and scratched hides. He thought of the tether plan, but the first trial was not a success, as the cats slipped the nooses from their necks. He then evolved a semi-hobble plan and tied the heavy string to one of the cat's hind legs, attaching the other end of the string to a stake driven in the back yard.

This system proved effective and now every day three of the cats take their exercise around their tether stakes.—Chicago Journal.

HARDING 'DISARM' PLEA WELCOMED

British Press Greet's President's Plan as Tremendously Significant.

LLOYD GEORGE HAILS PLAN

Premier Makes Announcement in House of Commons—Members
Cheer Statement—Text of President's Proposal to Powers.

London, July 13.—President Harding's message looking to the calling of an international conference on the limitation of armaments has been received with the utmost pleasure by Great Britain. Mr. Lloyd George, the prime minister, declared in the house of commons.

Speaking on the subject of the American communication the prime minister said:

"I need not say that we welcome with the utmost pleasure President Harding's wise and courteous initiative."

The house cheered this statement, and the premier added:

"In saying that, I speak for the empire as a whole."

"The world has been looking to the United States for such a lead," Mr. Lloyd George declared in referring to President Harding's message. "I am confident that the house will esteem it as an act of far-seeing statesmanship and will wholeheartedly wish it success. No effort will be lacking to make it so on the part of the British empire, which shares to the full the liberal and progressive spirit inspiring it."

China would be admitted to the conference for the purpose of taking part in the consideration of the Far Eastern problems, and there was a feeling here that the discussions would bring about a definite understanding which would include virtually the whole field of international relations.

Ambassador Harvey is understood to have conveyed President Harding's proposal to Prime Minister Lloyd George at Chequers, court Sunday. Dominion premiers, who were spending the week-end with Mr. Lloyd George, joined with him in heartily receiving Mr. Harvey and voicing appreciation of Mr. Harding's action in asking for a conference.

Newspaper comment would appear to indicate deep gratification on the part of the British people over the prospects of a disarmament conference, it being felt that such a meeting would clear away the difficulties surrounding a renewal of the Anglo-Japanese alliance, to which there seems to have been a rising tide of opposition. Internal affairs in England would at once reflect the relief felt by a limitation of armaments, it was declared here.

Washington, July 13.—Definite steps taken by President Harding looking to a conference in Washington of the principal allied and associated powers to discuss limitation of armament and Pacific and Far Eastern problems, are announced by the State department in the following statement:

"The President, in view of the far-reaching importance of the question of limitation of armaments, has approached with informal but definite inquiry the group of powers heretofore known as the principal allied and associated powers, that is: Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan, to ascertain whether it would be agreeable to them to take part in a conference on this subject, to be held in Washington at a time to be mutually agreed upon."

"If the proposal is found to be acceptable, formal invitations for such a conference will be issued."

"It is manifest that the question of limitation of armaments has a close relation to Pacific and Far Eastern problems, and the President has suggested that the powers especially interested in these problems should undertake, in connection with the conference, the consideration of all matters bearing upon their solution, with a view to reaching a common understanding with respect to principles and policy of the Far East. This has been communicated to the powers concerned, and China has also been invited to take part in the discussion relating to Far Eastern problems."

ASKS DE VALERA TO CONFERENCE

Lloyd George Officially Invites the Irish Leader to London.

IRELAND TO BECOME DOMINION

London Report Says an Agreement
Has Been Reached Between Government, the Sinn Fein and Unionists of South.

London, July 12.—Premier Lloyd George officially invited Eamonn De Valera to meet him in London this week to discuss the question of peace in Ireland.

The premier sent the following telegram to the Irish leader:

"I have received your letter of acceptance and I shall be happy to see you and any colleagues whom you wish to bring with you to Downing street any day this week. Please wire date of your arrival in London."

Ireland is to become a British dominion by an agreement already reached by the British government with the Sinn Fein and the unionists of southern Ireland.

The only discontents to this accord on the eve of the London conference are the Orangemen, although the counties of Ireland where they predominate are to be offered special guarantees.

It is impossible to overemphasize the Ulster difficulty, but it is to be pointed out that the historic cycle again has taken a full turn. It is now Ulster and not south and west Ireland that is likely to prejudice the chances of peace.

During the past week Sir James Craig has assured King George and Premier Lloyd George that he would work his hardest to induce his followers to accept the dominion settlement. The British government is pledged to the hilt not to coerce the Orangemen to accept a settlement of which they do not approve, but it is certain that they will have to take less authority than that conferred on them by the partition home rule act, which has failed of operation in southern Ireland.

Premier Lloyd George spent the week-end at his country place, but he was in hourly communication with Sir Hamar Greenwood, chief secretary for Ireland, who spends his time at the Irish office at the end of a direct wire leading to Dublin castle, seat of the English government in Ireland.

The Irish office issued a statement saying:

"The mere announcement of the truce reacted favorably throughout the Irish countryside. A friendly spirit is abroad in Ireland. There was no provocation on either side. There were only one or two minor outrages."

"The attack on the Belfast patrol was unfortunate, but it may have been due to local difficulties outside the control of the Sinn Fein."

In pursuance of the terms of the truce all recruiting for the royal Irish constabulary has been stopped.

Dublin, July 12.—"Ireland hopes that the time is not far distant when she, one of the oldest of the European nations, may take her place among the free peoples of the world."

This statement was given to newspaper men by Eamonn De Valera, "president of the Irish republic." He added:

"Should our hope come to fruition Europe and all humanity will hear with profound relief that the use of force to overcome the national right of Ireland has been abandoned after seven centuries by one of the greatest military powers of the world."

COULD BEAT HANDS SHUCKING HIS CORN

At Least J. A. White Would Bet
So, After Being Relieved of Dyspepsia by Tanlac.

"My wife and myself have had stomach trouble," says Mr. J. A. White, residing on the Leestown Pike, R. F. D. No. 6, near Lexington, Ky., "and have both been nervous and run down."

"We could not see anything without suffering afterwards and could not sleep at night. We were regular nervous dyspeptics. We tried many remedies without permanent benefit until we heard of Tanlac. I got this medicine and began using it. We noticed immediate results. We are both greatly improved by Tanlac. We give all credit for the change of health to Tanlac. It is a remarkable medicine."

"I personally feel so good that I told my hands a day or two ago that I could beat any of them shucking corn. I meant it and believe I could have beat 'em all."

Of all the maladies that afflict humanity chronic dyspepsia, such as Mr. and Mrs. White suffered from, is probably the most prevalent, and hours might be consumed in describing the sufferings, mental and bodily, of the victims of chronic dyspepsia.

A morbid, unreal, whimsical and melancholy condition of the mind, aside from the nervous physical suffering, is the usual state of the average dyspeptic, and life seems scarcely worth living.

Tanlac, the celebrated medicine, was designed especially for overcoming this distressing condition and millions of people have taken it with the most astonishing and gratifying results. It seems to go straight to the spot, toning up and invigorating every organ of the body.

Mrs. Janssen's experience of interest to childless wives.

Millston, Wis.—"I want to give you a word of praise for your wonderful medicine. We are fond of children, and for a considerable time after we were married I feared I would not have any. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it strengthened me so I now have a nice, strong, healthy baby girl. I suffered very little at childbirth, and I give all the credit to your medicine, and shall always recommend it highly."—Mrs. H. H. JANSSEN, Millston, Wis.

Mrs. Held of Marinette, Wis., adds her testimonial for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She says:

Marinette, Wis.—"I was in a nervous condition and very irregular. My doctor advised an operation. My husband brought me one of your booklets and asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It overcame my weakness so that I now have a healthy baby girl after having been married nine years. I am glad to recommend your medicine, and you may use my letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. H. B. HELD, 330 Jefferson St., Marinette, Wis.

There are many, many such homes that were once childless, and are now blessed with healthy, happy children because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored the mother to a strong and healthy condition, as it acts as a natural restorative for ailments as indicated by backache, irregularities, displacements, weakness and nervousness.

Women everywhere should remember that most of the commoner ailments of women are not the surgical ones—they are not caused by serious displacements or growths, although the symptoms may be the same, and that is why so many apparently serious ailments readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it acts as a natural restorative. It can be taken with perfect safety and often prevents serious troubles.

Therefore if you know of any woman who is suffering and has been unable to secure relief and is regretfully looking forward to a childless old age, ask her to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it has brought health and happiness into so many homes once darkened by illness and despair.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Allments Peculiar to Women" will be sent to you free upon request. Write to The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

Mrs. J. L. Long, 2722 S. My kidneys acted too freely and I had dizzy spells when black spots came floated before my eyes. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they cured me. I haven't had to take a kidney medicine since."

Western Canada Land of Prosperity

offers to home seekers opportunities that cannot be secured elsewhere. The thousands of farmers from the United States who have accepted Canada's generous offer to settle on FREE homesteads or buy farm land in her provinces have been well paid by bountiful crops. There is still available on easy terms

Fertile Land at $15 to $30 an Acre

—land similar to that which through many years has yielded from 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre—oats, barley and flax also in great abundance, while raising horses, cattle, sheep and hogs is equally profitable. Hundreds of farmers in Western Canada have raised crops in a single season worth more than the whole cost of their land. With such success comes prosperity, independence, good homes and all the comforts and conveniences which make life worth living.

FORD PLANT BUILDS MANY CARS IN JUNE

During the month of June, the Ford Motor Co. through its Detroit factories and twenty-two assembly plants throughout the country reached the production of 108,962 Ford cars and trucks, setting up a new high record for one month.

Production of Ford cars and trucks has been steadily increasing since early spring, and shows substantial gains over the same period last year. The second quarter of 1921, viz., April, May and June, shows an output of 301,796 Ford cars and trucks against 220,878 for the same three months of last year, or a net increase of 80,918.

Despite the fact, however, that the Ford plants have been running at maximum capacity, the demand for Ford cars and trucks is not being met, and at the present time, many thousand unfilled orders have been piled up ahead so that Ford sales are still limited by manufacturing facilities rather than marketing possibilities. Particularly is this true with respect to enclosed cars, for which the demand has been unusually heavy.

One reason cited by Ford officials for the unprecedented demand for Ford cars is the present tendency toward economy. Many of those whose names have been added to the long list of buyers might well have afforded larger and more costly cars than the Ford, but it is the belief that most prospective motor car buyers are investigating all of the costs incident to motoring much more carefully than at any period during the past five years.

The estimated output of Ford factories for July calls for 109,000 cars and trucks, or a production of 4,360 a day for 15 days. Since the assembling of cars is being handled during an eight hour work day only, the hourly output will be 545 cars. In other words, one Ford car or truck leaves the assembly line every six and one-half seconds.

Dramatic Plot Hold Big Surprise

Dramatic productions with a surprise ending have been eclipsed by "The River's End," a James Oliver Curwood story, produced by First National Exhibitors' Circuit, which theatre patrons will have an opportunity to see at the Majestic theatre Saturday.

The entire dramatic interest of the production is developed until the final scenes, when the plot is completely unraveled in tensely gripping flashes. "At The River's End," Mr. Neilan's first independent production, embraces of a well-fitting care of players, prominent among whom are Lewis Stone, Jane Novak, Charles West and Marjorie Daw.

Base Ball Notes

Clyde (Red) Fields was on the job again with his first class catching.

Catcher Kelly was among the fans, taking a rest.

Harold (Banty) Hughes, of Chicago, did the job of umpiring.

Ralph James was back on the job in right field again, after a lay up from a bruised thumb. He again did injury to the same thumb in the sixth inning.

Russell Harden, of Fond du Lac, was a witness at the game.

The crowd is getting better every Sunday, let the good work keep up.

Destroy Roadside Weeds

Because—

1. They act as centers of weed infestation for adjoining fields.
2. They may be carried for many miles by passing vehicles and animals.
3. They harbor harmful insects and plant diseases.
4. They create insanitary conditions.
5. They are unsightly.

Methods for destroying roadside weeds, approved by specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture, are:

1. Mowing twice a year while they are in full bloom, usually in June and August.
2. Utilizing the roadides for growing hay.
3. Grazing with tethered animals.
4. Converting weedy roadides into lawns.
5. Graded all roadides so the weeds can be controlled.

DANCED HIMSELF TO DEATH

Young Frenchman Chose to Die Rather Than Miss Waltz With Sweetheart.

The great love which Gustave Treboux, son of a rich French banker, bore for the girl he once had hoped to marry led him to choose death in a last waltz with her.

Treboux was an inmate of a sanitarium at Leysin, France, and the girl, Mlle. Germaine Ledoux, came to see him as he lay in bed. Mlle. Ledoux told him that evening there was to be a dance at the hotel nearby. He asked the doctor if he could waltz with the girl he loved.

"Yes, if you want to commit suicide," was the doctor's reply.

Treboux said nothing, but in the evening he got out of bed, dressed, called for Germaine and went to the dance. He waited till the orchestra began to play a waltz, took the girl in his arms, and together the two joined the dancers.

As the dance ended, Treboux staggered and fell on a sofa, blood pouring from his mouth. As the girl bent over him he fell back dead.

Fordson Tractor Makes Record Run

Stopping only for gasoline and oil, a Fordson tractor owned by N. Korpua, of Ludden, Dickey county, N. D., recently completed a record run of forty days. Three operators were assigned to the tractor, each working an eight hour shift, and thus keeping the tractor in operation twenty-four hours a day. "Nine hundred acres were plowed without one minute's stop for repairs," says the affidavit received by the Ford Co. from the Fordson owner.

The tractor was purchased during the summer of 1919. In the spring of 1920, Korpua began his plowing and had already turned 200 acres before he conceived the idea of working the tractor day and night.

Electric head lights were installed operators were obtained, and with no further special preparations, the little Fordson entered upon what turned out to be a record run for endurance.

Antioch Sales and Service Station have taken the agency for the Fordson tractor.

Term Originated With Lloyd's.

The term "A 1," a slang phrase popularly used to denote a high quality of excellence or a condition perfectly satisfactory, originated with Lloyd's agency in London. When a ship was being insured the rating "A 1" was placed opposite the name of the vessel to indicate absolute seaworthiness. The leading American financial reporting systems adopted the symbols, with variations, to indicate a business man's credit rating and capital.

Care of Geraniums.

Geraniums should be kept moist, but should not be given too much water at a time. They need a sunny window. The plants should be kept in a fairly even temperature, and it should be borne in mind that they must have plenty of air, for they won't thrive in a "stuffy" room. Light and sun are necessary for all plants, and there is always more danger of getting too little than too much.

FORDSON TRACTOR

Put It to Any Power Task

While the Fordson Tractor has power in plenty to drag plows and harrows through the heaviest soil, it is light enough, small enough and so easily controlled that it can handily be put to many tasks about the farm, that will save you time, money and work.

In fact the Fordson will do every power job, both draw-bar and belt, more quickly and at less cost than it can be done with any other form of power. So every month the whole year 'round the always dependable Fordson will prove itself a paying investment, because of its capabilities, its economy and efficiency.

We will gladly explain and demonstrate to you the many Fordson money-making, time-saving features. Call, write or phone.

Sometimes cats fare very well as beneficiaries under wills. It was a Parisian woman, a few years ago, who left 10,000 francs to her cat. On her death the money was to be spent on elementary schools. The feline has since died and the money distributed according to directions. In numerous instances fortunes have been left to found homes for cats and dogs. Sometimes these wills have been dictated by love of animals, while in others, alas, they have been written merely for the purpose of "getting even" with grasping relatives.

Regiment Proud of Long Service.

The Third Infantry, the oldest regiment of our army, which dates from 1784, has developed its arms to show its early service in Mexico. One interesting device used by this regiment is a baton crossed with an oldtime bayonet back of the shield. The baton which figures prominently in the regiment's history was made from the flagstaff of the capital of the City of Mexico and was taken when the city was captured. It is still one of the most highly prized possessions of the regiment.

Dizzy's Venus.

Sir William Harcourt went once to visit Lord Dismal at Hingham and the couple were showing him their household goods. In the dining room, looking at an old Italian picture of Venus, "Wonderful!" said Sir William. "Ah! but she's nothing to the Venus that Dizzy has in his bedroom!" exclaimed funny little Lady Beaconsfield. Sir William, who was standing by the picture at the moment, turned round and made her ladyship a deep bow.—London Mail.

Little Black Bees.

Little black bees were on the blossoms of the wild cherry. They worked in its snow-white cups and often shook down the petals from the flowers. They darted from cluster to cluster, loading their thighs with primrose-colored pollen, while their wings vibrated in a fitful, rather shrill murmur. They were ground bees and had their home among the stones in a bank of fine grass, thyme and dog-violets not far distant.—Eden Phillpots.

Indian Name of Quaint Old City.

The Indians called a strait "Kebec," and the name was given to the site of the present city of Quebec from the peculiar configuration of the St. Lawrence river at that point, for the river there grows narrow and from its deep waters rises the bold height on which the ancient city stands. The French-Canadian still pronounces the name Kebec.

Where "Pep" Is Useless.

The business day is short in India; it seldom begins before 11 o'clock in the morning. There is a "liffin" or lunch period, probably two hours long, followed by an early closing. The American salesman, accustomed to jumping from town to town on fast trains, seeing customers early and late, and sending daily orders to the "house," is hardly the one to tackle the deliberateness of India, where the "house" is best forgotten in the sales talk and where the potency of the first person singular is undiminished.

Public Speech Not Dead.

Woodrow Wilson says "The age of oratory has not passed nor will it pass as long as there are human rights to be defended. As long as there are human rights to be defended; as long as there are great interests to be guarded; as long as the welfare of Nations is a matter for discussion—so long will public speaking have its place."

The greatest public forum of today is the Chautauqua platform. In 1920 there were 511 lecturers employed constantly in the Lyceum and Chautauqua and these 511 lecturers delivered 40,933 lectures. More people attended Chautauqua lecture courses than attended any other public meetings with the exception of the churches and the moving pictures. There was an aggregate of 35,000,000 admissions in American Chautauquas in 1920 and practically everyone of these heard a lecture of some kind or another at the Chautauqua.

The Chautauqua platform is the only free platform, free from sectarianism, partisanship and sectionalism. Any man who has a real message can thus get an audience and a hearing. This is one reason why the Chautauqua movement will live and grow.

THE U. S. NOBBY TREAD

Where the going is specially heavy with snow, mud or sand, in hilly country where maximum traction on the road is a factor, no other tire tread yet devised is quite so effective, or so wholly approved by motoring opinion, as the U. S. Nobby Tread.

Its very simplicity—three rows of diagonal knobs, gripping the road—is the result of all the years of U. S. Rubber experience with every type of road the world over.

If every one listened to experience,
how much they'd save

STOP and talk to the next man you see with U. S. Tires on his car. Ask him why.

Most likely you'll hear an interesting story about his tire experiments—before the answer was found. Money wasted. Promises unkept. Trouble on the road—humorous to every one except the man who went through it.

Finally U. S. Tires. And U. S. Tires ever since.

Perhaps it's the experience of U. S. Tire buyers that makes them more emphatic in their preference than ever this year.

When these men have tried most everything by the way of "staggering bargains", "hurrah discounts", "discontinued lines at less" and so forth they know what not to get.

They want a fresh, live tire. With a good reputation. That's everything it says it is. With the people behind it who back it up.

There are 92 U. S. Factory Branches. Your local U. S. Dealer is drawing upon them continually to keep his stocks sized up, complete—to give you service.

Whenever he gets one or a hundred tires from a U. S. Factory Branch, they are newly made this season's tires.

Sold to you at a net price. Full values. Square-dealing. A reputable maker. A reputable dealer. The whole transaction as befits the leadership of the oldest and largest rubber organization in the world.

The Voice of the Pack

By EDISON MARSHALL

When the ice made a crust over the snow, he learned to walk on snowshoes. At first there were pained ankles and endless floundering in the drifts. But between the fall of fresh snow and the thaws that softened the crust, he slowly mastered the art. Snowbird—and Dan never realized the full significance of her name until he saw her flying with incredible grace over the snow—laughed at him at first and ran him races that would usually end in his falling headfirst into a ten-foot snowbank. She taught him how to ski and more than once she would stop in the middle of an earnest bit of pedagogy to find that he wasn't listening at all. He would seem to be fairly devouring her with his eyes, delighting in the play of soft plinks and reds in her cheeks, and drinking, as a man drinks wine, the amazing change of light and shadow in her eyes.

She seemed to blossom under his gaze. Not one of those short winter days went by without the discovery of some new trait or little vanity to astonish or delight him—sometimes an unlooked-for tenderness toward the weak, often a sweet, untainted philosophy of life, or perhaps just a lowering of her eyelids in which her eyes would show lustrous through the lashes, or some sweeping, exuberant gesture startlingly graceful.

Lennox awakened one morning with the realization that this was one of the hardest winters of his experience. He began to be very glad of the abundant stores of provisions that overcrowded his pantry—savory hams and bacon, dried venison, sacks of potatoes and evaporated vegetables, and, of course, canned goods past counting. With the high fire roaring in the grate, the season held no ill for them. But sometimes, when the bitter cold came down at twilight, and the moon looked like a thing of ice itself over the snow, he began to wonder how the wild creatures who wintered on the Divide were faring. Of course most of them were gone. Wolf, long since, had grunted and mumbled his way into a winter lair. But the wolves remained, strange gray shadows on the snow, and possibly a few of the harder smaller creatures.

More than once in those long winter nights their talk was chopped off short by the song of the pack on some distant ridge. Sometime, when the world is old, possibly a man will be born that can continue to talk and keep his mind on his words while the wolf pack sings. But he is certainly an unknown quantity today. The cry sets in vibration curious memory chords, and for a moment the listener sees in his mind's eye his ancient home in an ancient world—Darkness and Fear and Eyes shining about the cave. It carries him back, and he knows the wilderness as it really is; and to have such knowledge dries up all inclination to talk, as a sponge dries water. Of course the picture isn't entirely plain. It is more a thing guessed at, a photograph in some dark part of an under-consciousness that has constantly grown more dim as the centuries have passed. Possibly sometime it will fade out altogether; and then a man may continue to discuss the weather while the Song from the ridge shudders in at the windows. But the world will be quite cold by then, and no longer particularly interesting. And possibly even the wolves themselves will then be tamed to play dead and speak pieces—which means the wilderness itself will be tamed. For as long as the wild lasts, the pack will run through it in the winter. They were here in the beginning, and in spite of constant war and constant hatred on the part of men, they will be here in the end. The reason is just that they are the symbol of the wilderness itself, and the idea of it continuing to exist without them is stranger than that of a nation without a flag.

It wasn't quite the same song that Dan had listened to in the first days of fall. It had been triumphant then, and proud with the wilderness pride. Of course it had been sad then, too, but it was more sad now. And it was stranger, too, and crept farther into the souls of its listeners. It was the song of strength that couldn't avail against the snow, possibly of cold and the despair and courage of starvation. These three that heard it were injured to the wilderness; but a moment was always needed after its last note had died to regain their sanity.

"They're getting lean and they're getting savage," Lennox said one night, stretched on his divan before the fireplace. He was still unable to walk; but the fractures were knitting slowly and the doctor had promised that the summer would find him well. "If we had a dog, I wouldn't offer much for his life. One of these days we'll find 'em in a big circle around the house—and then we'll have to open up with the rifles."

But this picture appalled neither of his two young listeners. No wolf pack can stand against three marksmen, armed with rifles and behind oak walls.

Christmas came and passed, and January brought clear days and an ineffective sun shining on the snow. These were the best days of all. Every afternoon Dan and Snowbird would go out on their skis or on snowshoes, unarmed except for the pistol that Snowbird carried in the deep pocket of her mackinaw. "But why not?" Dan replied to Lennox's objection. "She could kill five wolves with five shots, or pretty near it, and you know well enough that that would hold 'em till we got home. They'd stop to eat the five. I have had enough time keeping up with her as it is, without carrying a rifle." And Lennox was content. Dan had told the truth when he said that five deaths or even fewer, would repel the attack of any wolf pack he had ever seen. There was just one troubling thought. He had heard, long ago, and he had forgotten who had told him, that in the most severe winters the wolves gather in particularly large packs; and a quality in the song that they had heard at night seemed to bear it out. The chorus had been exceptionally loud and strong, and he had been unable to pick out individual voices.

The snow was perfect for skiing. Previously their sport had been many times interrupted either by the fall of fresh snow or a thaw that had softened the snow crust; but now every afternoon was too perfect to remain indoors. They shouted and romped in the silences, and they did not dream but that they had the wilderness all to themselves. The fact that one night Lennox's keen eyes had seen what looked like the glow of a camp fire in the distance didn't affect this belief of theirs at all. It was evidently just the phosphorus glowing in a rotten log from which the winds had blown the snow.

Once or twice they caught glimpses of wild life: once a grouse that had buried in the snow flushed from their path and blew the snow-dust from its wings; and once or twice they saw snowshoe rabbits bounding away on flat feet over the drifts. But just one day they caught sight of a wolf. They were on snowshoes on a particularly brilliant afternoon late in January.

He was a lone male, evidently a straggler from the pack, and he leaped from the top of a tall thicket that had remained above the snow. The man and the girl had entirely different reactions. Dan's first impression was amazement at the animal's condition. It seemed to be in the last stages of starvation; unbelievably gaunt, with rib bones showing plainly even through the furry hide. Ordinarily the heavily furred animals do not show signs of famine; but even an inexperienced eye could not make a mistake in this case. The eyes were red, and they carried Dan back to his first adventure in the Oregon forest—the day he had shot the mad coyote. Snowbird thought of the beast only as an enemy. The wolves killed her father's stock; they were brigands of the worst order; and she shared the hatred of them that is a common trait of all primitive peoples. Her hand whipped back, seized her pistol, and she fired twice at the fleeing figure.

The second shot was a hit: both of them saw the wolf go to its side, then spring up and race on. Shouting, both of them sped after him.

In a few moments he was out of sight among the distant trees, but they found the blood-trail and munched over the ridge. They expected at any moment to find him lying dead; but the track led them on clear down the next canyon. And now they cared not at all whether they found him: it was simply a tramp in the out-of-doors; and both of them were young with red blood in their veins.

But all at once Dan stopped in his tracks. The girl sped on for six paces before she missed the sound of his snowshoes; then she turned to find him standing, wholly motionless, with eyes fixed upon her.

It startled her, and she didn't know why. A companion abruptly freezing in his path, his muscles inert, and his eyes filling with speculation, is always startling. When this occurs it means simply that a thought so compelling and engrossing that even the half-unconscious physical functions, such as walking, cannot continue, has come into his mind. And it is part of the old creed of self-preservation to dislike greatly to be left out on any such thought as this. If danger is present, the sooner it is identified the better.

"What is it?" she demanded. He turned to her curiously intent. "How many shells have you in that pistol?"

She took one breath and answered him. "It holds five, and I shot twice. I haven't any others."

"And I don't suppose it ever occurred to you to carry extra ones in your pocket?"

"Father is always telling me to—and several times I have. But I'd shoot them away at target practice and forget to take any more. There was never any danger—except that night with a cougar. I did intend to—but what does it matter now?"

"We're a couple of wise ones, going after that wolf with only three shots to our name. Of course by himself he's harmless—but he's likely enough to lead us straight toward the pack. And Snowbird—I didn't like his looks. He's too gaunt and he's too hungry—and I haven't a bit of doubt he waited in that brush for us to come, intending to attack us—and lost his nerve the last thing. That shows he's desperate. I don't like him, and I wouldn't like his pack. And a whole pack might not lose its nerve."

"Then you think we'd better turn back?"

"Yes, I do, and not come out any more without a whole pocket of shells. I'm going to carry a rifle, too, just as Lennox has always. He's got only a flesh-wound. You saw what you did with two cartridges—got in one flesh-wound. Three of 'em against a pack wouldn't be a great deal of aid. I don't mean to say you can't shoot, but a jumping, lively wolf is worse than a bird in the air. We've gone over three miles; and he'd lead us ten miles farther—even if he didn't go to the pack. Let's go back."

"If you say so. But I don't think there's the least bit of danger. We can always climb a tree."

"And have 'em make a beautiful circle under it! They've got more patience than we have—and we'd have to come down some time. Your father can't come to our help, you know. It's the sign of the tenderfoot not to think there's any danger—and I'm not going to think that way any more."

They turned back and munched in silence a long time.

"I suppose you'll think I'm a coward," Dan asked her humbly.

"Only prudent, Dan," she answered, smiling. Whether she meant it he did not know. "I'm just beginning to understand that you—living here only a few months—really know and understand all this better than I do." She stretched her arms wide to the wilderness. "I guess it's your instinct."

"And I do understand," he told her earnestly. "I sensed danger back there just as sure as I can see your face. That pack—and it's a big one—is close; and it's terribly hungry. And you know—you can't help but know—that the wolves are not to be trusted in famine times."

"I know it only too well," she said. Then she paused and asked him about a strange grayness, like snow blown by the wind, on the sky over the ridge.

Bert Cranston waited in a clump of exposed thicket on the hillside until he saw two black dots, that he knew were Dan and Snowbird, leave the Lennox home. He lay very still as they circled up the ridge, noticing that except for the pistol that he knew Snowbird always carried, they were unarmed. There was no particular reason why he should be interested in that point. It was just the mountain way always to look for weapons, and it is rather difficult to trace the mental processes behind this impulse. Perhaps it can be laid to the fact that many mountain families are often at feud with one another, and anything in the way of violence may happen before the morning.

The two passed out of his sight, and after a long time he heard the crack of Snowbird's pistol. He guessed that she had either shot at some wild creature, or else was merely at target practice—rather a common proceeding for the two when they were on the hills together. Thus it is to be seen that Cranston knew their habits fairly well. And since he had kept a close watch upon them for several days, this was to be expected.

He had no intention of being interrupted in this work he was about to do. He had planned it all very well. The older Lennox was still helpless. Cranston had noticed that when Dan and Snowbird went out, they were usually gone from two to four hours; and that gave him plenty of time for his undertaking. The moment had come at last to make a thorough search of Lennox's house for those incriminating documents that Dan had found near the body of Landy Hildreth.

The only really dangerous part of his undertaking was his approach. If by any chance Lennox were looking out of the window, he might be found waiting with a rifle across his arms. It would be quite like the old mountaineer to have his gun beside him, and to shoot it quick and exceptionally straight, without asking questions, at any stealing figure in the snow. Yet Cranston felt fairly sure that Lennox was still too helpless to raise a gun to a shooting position.

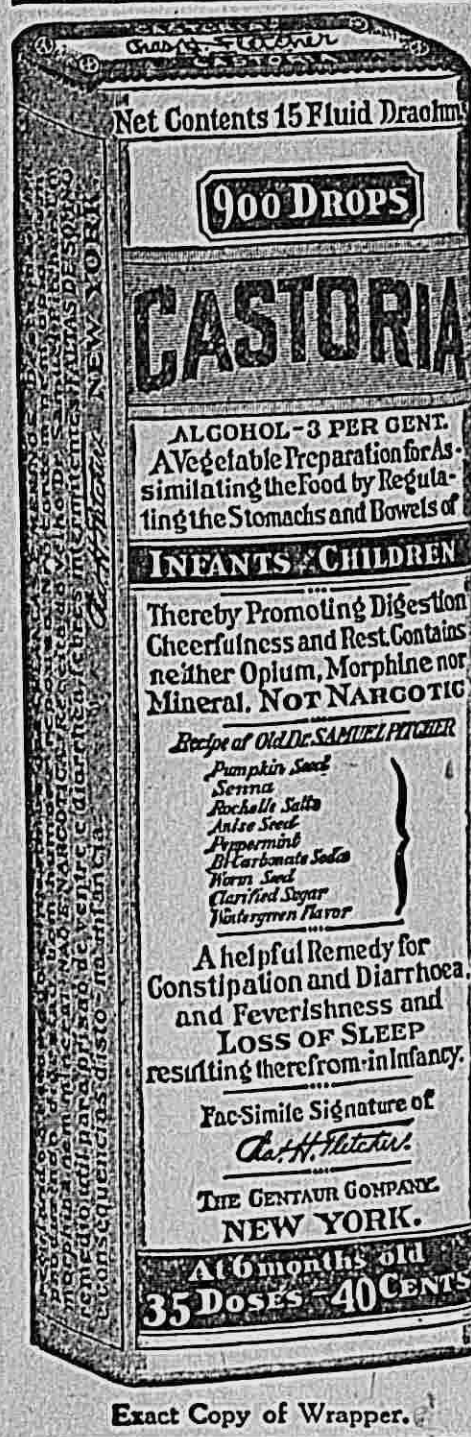

He had observed that the mountaineer spent his time either on the fireplace divan or on his own bed. Neither of these places was available to the rear windows of the house. So, very wisely, he made his attack from the rear.

Children Cry For

Fletcher's CASTORIA

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation, send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.

If you have sourness, belching, indigestion, food repelling or any other stomach trouble, take Eaton tablets after each meal and find relief. GROW HIGHLY PRIZED COTTON

Virgin Islands Produce Long-Staple Variety That is Almost Extinct in the United States.

Cotton raising has become one of the principal industries of the Virgin Islands, Uncle Sam's newest territorial possession, according to Bulletin No. 1, Sea Island Cotton in St. Croix, of the Virgin Islands agricultural experiment station, just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Sea-island cotton, the much-prized, long-staple variety which has been rendered almost extinct in continental United States by the boll weevil, is the basis of the Virgin Islands industry. The area devoted to it, while as yet small, produced an average yield of 1,000 pounds of seed cotton to the acre in 1910 and 1920. One of the plots at the government experiment station produced at the rate of 4,450 pounds of seed cotton.

"No," said a fourth, "you mean, 'In butter there is strength.'"

"Well," said the smart boarder, "the particular proverb I had in mind is, 'None but the brave deserve the fair.'"

MARTHA STOUT TRIMBLE

Few women have traveled so widely or had such opportunity for observation as Mrs. Trimble, who holds a unique place among American women lecturers. For fifteen years her lectures, sermons and addresses have attracted attention and stirring comment in cities from the Atlantic to the Pacific, as well as in Australia, New Zealand, Mexico, Canada and on ship-board on the high seas. She possesses a rare charm on the platform, not always found among speakers of her sex, in that she avoids all masculine mannerisms, preferring to remain always a woman. In power, scholarship and personality she easily ranks among the leading women speakers in America.

John's Wife and Sweetheart

By WILLIAM FALL

(©, 1921, Western Newspaper Union)

John Croft had written to his wife and dropped the letter down the mail chute. She had been gone three weeks, but she had communicated with him twice during that period so that the breach between them was not irrevocable. That morning her second letter had come, and now that he had answered it he took it up and began reading it again.

"Dear John," she wrote. "I have been thinking a good deal during our separation and have come to the conclusion that neither of us is so much to blame for our disagreements as the other thinks. It is our life in the city, John, the rush of work, the cramped quarters, the killing of the romance of life by the sordid struggle for existence. John, shall we try again and see if we cannot be kinder to each other?"

John Croft had come to the city from the country, like so many country boys, burning to make a name and fortune in the field where the prizes are immense but the struggle acute. No mercy is given on that battlefield. He was twenty then, and Mildred Carter had told him that she would wait for him, if need be, forever. They had been sweethearts for three years and neither had been in love before. And Mildred waited, though the wait was long. Year by year John Croft had struggled vainly, hopelessly, until his sudden recognition came. Then he had married.

At last his wife and he had resolved upon a temporary separation. It was not to be permanent. They were too sincerely fond of each other to dream of anything like that. Rather it was to be a period of adjustment in which, each, alone, could examine his and her heart and see wherein the offense lay.

His wife would not return for three days. Why, then, should he not go to her, to Clayton, the village of their birth, and see her as she was now, recall the thousand memories of their love, steep his soul in those passionate memories which would encourage him to take up the battle of life anew? He sat down at his desk and wrote her a letter of a thousand endearments. He was coming back to Clayton, he said.

No sooner had he posted that letter than the plan became overwhelming in its insistence. He thrust a few things into his suitcase, descended in the elevator, hailed a taxicab, and was on his way to the station.

Ten minutes later he was seated in his car, watching the flying landscape as the train steamed through the pleasant country on its way toward the little Pennsylvania village.

It was six hours' run. Croft's heart was beating fast when at last, well toward sundown, the train slowed down and ran into the little station. He made his way down the village street under the long shadows of the elms.

It was a long street, and before he had reached the end the sun had set. The gracious twilight of spring shrouded all things in mystery. The place had not changed at all. He might have been returning thither from college.

All sense of the intervening years had left him. At last he was standing at the bottom of Mildred's garden.

"Mildred!" he called.

Then his heart pounded violently in his breast as he saw a slim figure in a sunbonnet start out of the house and move toward him with the old, lelsurely grace. And so she passed between the borders of flowering lilac and at last stood before him. Why, this was his Mildred, unchanged—well, hardly changed, not at all to him. He knew now that he would love her until he died.

"Mildred!" he cried and then he had clasped her in his arms and her heart was beating against his own. And for a long time they forgot everything, save that they two stood there together as they once had done.

"John, dear," she whispered, raising her head and looking into his eyes.

"Mildred!"

"It has been all a mistake, hasn't it? I was the city that killed our love. Dear, you don't know how happy your letter made me. If we could always live here together!"

"Dear," he said softly, "I want you to know one thing. I always loved you. Sometimes, when we were least happy, I fancied that there were two Mildreds—my wife and the sweetheart who came from Clayton to marry me five years ago. But now they are both one and we will live here together and start our married life anew."

A smashing drama of Gods country, crammed with mystery and thrills, with a tender and most unusual love story "The Rivers End."
